STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

Schedule-H drugs are those medicines which contain a very high alcoholic influence. These are used to treat some serious diseases like heart diseases, anxiety disorders and other diseases. Restricted sale of antibiotics to check drug resistance is emerging as a serious health issue in the country. Resistance to antibiotics and an increase in drug resistant TB cases are cited as a result of improper prescription and consumption of antibiotics which are easily available.

Strict measures would ensure that pharmacists do not take advantage of unawareness of consumers to drain profits from the sale of these drugs. It would also ensure that people do not take these drugs lightly and know the importance of medical advice.

Having separate sets of antibiotics depending on the disease—mild ones for outpatient and emergency patients and strong and high-end antibiotics for those under intensive care will hopefully make sure that antibiotics are used judiciously so that resistance to commonly used antibiotics does not develop rapidly, and that the medicines are available for critically ill patients.

It is definitely in the best interest of people to avoid consumption of harmful drugs until it's very necessary.

The Bill, therefore, seeks to ban the sale of Schedule-H drugs without doctor's prescription to provide medical safety.

Hence this Bill.
