may extend to fourteen years, and shall also be liable to fine which shall not exceed rupees five lakh".

Amendment of section 326B.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

Acid attacks are becoming a growing phenomena which has a specific gender dimension in India. Laxmi's case is an example of what normally occurs in acid attack cases. The acid throwing is an extremely violent crime by which the perpetrator of the crime seeks to inflict severe physical and mental suffering on the victims. It is often motivated by deep seated jealousy or feelings of revenge against women. An acid attack has long lasting consequences on the life of the victim who faces a perpetual torture, permanent damage and other problems for rest of her life. Victims normally feel worthless, afraid and mortified and become social outcast because of their appearance.

Until 2013, there was no clear mechanism to ascertain the number of cases involving acid attacks since the Indian Penal Code did not recognise it as a separate offence. The offence of acid attack was tried under various sections of the Indian Penal Code and no estimates of figures of such attacks were available. The Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 2013 inserted new sections 326A and 326B in the Indian Penal Code and made specific offences of grievous hurt by use of acid and throwing or attempting to throw acid etc.

It is contended that even if the victims are willing to pursue a normal life, there is no guarantee that society itself will treat them as normal human beings given their appearance and disability after and attack. Therefore, the penalties proposed in the Indian Penal Code is insufficient and needs amendments for more rigorously punishing the perpetrators of these attacks and for monetary and economic rehabilitation of the victim of the attack.

The Bill proposes to enhance the quantum of penalty for acid attacks under sections 326A and 326B of the Indian Penal Code. It is expected that such stringent measures will curb acid attacks on women.

Hence this Bill.
