30 15. The provisions of this Act shall have effect notwithstanding anything inconsistent therewith contained in any other law for the time being in force.

Overriding effect of the Act.

STATEMENTS OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

India is projected to become the world's most populous country by 2024. Currently, India every year adds 15 million people to its population base by far the largest in the world. The problematic aspect is that India accounts for about 17 per cent. of the world population worth only 2.2 per cent. of the world's land mass. The increasing population has resulted in an increasing pressure on the country's limited natural resources. As a result, we have witnessed a range of socio-economic issues in the past few decades such as large-scale environmental degradation, urban air pollution and the reduction in the size of agricultural holdings. Additionally, the state of the infrastructure in the country has failed to meet the demands of the growing population. Most parts of the country are suffering due to absence of basic education and health facilities.

In the past three decades, India has made significant progress in decreasing population growth. As per the World Bank, the fertility rate in the country has decreased from 4.97 in 1975 to nearly 2.4 in 2015. It is expected in the coming decade the fertility rate in India will soon reach the replacement level of 2.1. However, despite the decrease in fertility rate, according to United Nations World Population Prospects report India's population will continue to increase up till 2050. Given the array of socio-economic issues arising as a result of over population, it is important that India as a country starts focusing on steps to decrease population rather than just stabilising it. Additionally, the population growth is very uneven across the country. While some states have successfully been able to stabilize their population, northern states have witnessed and continue to witness high population growth. It is essential to focus on specific districts with high population growth rates to tackle the problem effectively.

The Bill, therefore, seeks to introduce incentives for population control and provides for constitution of National Population Stabilisation Fund. It is vital for us to realize that population control and enforcement of two child norms for central government employees are immediate measures, however steps such as providing contraceptives and encouraging family planning can possibly play a stronger role in decreasing the population growth rate in the long run.

Hence, this Bill.

FINANCIAL MEMORANDUM

Clause 6 of the Bill provides for establishment of District Population Stabilization Committees that would work to provide assistance and information regarding population control. Clause 7 provides for lump sum cash amount to be given to married couples living below poverty line as an incentive for population control. Clause 9 provides for the introduction of a compulsory subject on population control in schools of certain districts. Clause 5 provides for the establishment of the National Population Stabilization Fund. Clause 11 provides that the Central Government shall provide funds for carrying out the purposes of the Act. The Central Government shall have to incur some expenditure for implementing the provisions of this Bill in respect of Union territories. The State Government will incur expenditure in respect of their States out of their respective consolidated funds. The Bill, therefore, if enacted, would involve an annual recurring expenditure of about rupees five hundred crore per annum from the Consolidated Fund of India.

No non-recurring expenditure is likely to be involved.

MEMORANDUM REGARDING DELEGATED LEGISLATION

Clause 14 of the Bill empowers the Central Government to make rules for carrying out the provisions of the Bill. As the rules to be made relate to matters of details only, the delegation of legislative power is of normal character.
