(e): Yes, the government has taken initiatives towards the prevention and creating awareness of Silicosis in workers.

The Factories Act, 1948 is the principal legislation for regulating various aspects relating to safety, health and welfare of workers employed in factories including factories using silica. This Act is a Central Enactment, which aims at protecting workers employed in factories from industrial and occupational hazards. The Statutes stipulate a systems approach to identify, assess and prevent hazards at the workplace, so as to reduce industrial injuries and occupational diseases.

Also the Government of India, Ministry of Labour & Employment, has declared the National Policy on Safety, Health and Environment at Workplace (NPSHEW) with the purpose to establish a preventive safety and health culture in the country through elimination of the incidents of work related injuries, diseases, fatalities, disasters and to enhance the well being of employees in all the sectors of economic activity in the country.

A dedicated awareness center on asbestos and silica has been developed at Regional Labour Institute Faridabad for creating awareness and educating the stake holders on hazards associated and prevention in the use, handling, processing and exposure of silica and asbestos.

Under the Mines Act, 1952 and the Rules and Regulations framed thereunder, the Government made the following statutory provisions to check and prevent occupational diseases of persons employed in mines:

- (i) Initial Medical Examinations of persons to be employed in mines and Periodical Medical Examinations of persons already employed in mines at an interval of 5 years.
- (ii) Engineering control measures on prevention and generation of air-borne dust at workplace are also made under Regulation 123 of the Coal Mines Regulation, 1957 and Regulation 124 of the Metalliferous Mines Regulation, 1961. Measures to be taken are-
 - Wet drilling
 - The 8-hrs time weighted average permissible limits for airborne respirable dust as determined by use of approved dust sampling instruments and procedures laid down are:

Contd..4/-

- ✓ 1 fibres per milliliter of air in case of asbestos.
 - ✓ 5 milligrams per cubic metre of air in case of manganese ore.
 - ✓ 3 milligrams per cubic metre of air; where the working is being made wholly in coal seam or where free respirable silica content in respirable dust is less than 5%.
 - ✓ In other cases where free respirable silica content in respirable dust is more than 5 percent, the permissible limit shall be calculated by the formula, 15% of free silica in milligrams per cubic metre of air.
- Periodic monitoring of dust levels at workplace.
 - Personal Dust Exposure profile using Personal Dust Samplers.
 - Use of Dust mask and Dust respirator as Personal Protective Equipment when liberation of dust below respirable limit cannot be controlled.

It is the duty of the mine management to comply with the above provisions in their respective mines.

Other steps taken:

1.0 Awareness camps with the help of State Government is being organized to bring awareness among the mine owners and mine workers about Silicosis and measures available for protection against Silicosis including the use of protective gear.

2.0 Special drive on implementation of statutory provisions regarding dust in small metal mines has been undertaken by this Directorate. In case of serious / repeated violation Prohibitory orders have been imposed under Section 22A (2) of the Mines Act, 1952 in 847 mines. The matter is being followed up to its logical conclusion as per the statute.
