received 151 complaints relating to involvement of IPS officers in corruption which have been forwarded to the State Government/UT concerned for taking further action. During the last three years (2014 to 2016) and the current year, three proposals, containing detailed investigation reports, were received in this Ministry from State Governments seeking prosecution sanction under the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988 against the IPS officers who, after investigation, were found indulged in corrupt activities. In all these cases, prosecution sanctions under the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988 have been granted, as per the following details:

Year	Name of State	No. of IPS officers
2014	Rajasthan	1
2015	Tamil Nadu	1
2016	Gujarat	1

(d) Various investigating agencies such as CBI, State Anti-Corruption Bureau, Vigilance Departments, etc. investigate the corruption cases against the IPS officers as and when the matter is suitably brought to the notice of these agencies. On completion of the investigation by these agencies, if the officer is prima facie found to be indulged in corrupt activities, prosecution sanction under PC Act, 1988 is granted by the Central Government to prosecute the delinquent officer before a court of competent jurisdiction. Simultaneously, disciplinary proceedings may also be initiated against the officer under the All India Services (Discipline & Appeal) Rules, 1969.
