ANSWER

MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF HOME AFFAIRS (SHRI NITYANAND RAI)

(a) to (e): At present there are demands for inclusion of several languages, including Ho, Bhumij and Mundari, in the Eighth Schedule to the Constitution of India. As the evolution of dialects and languages is a dynamic process, influenced by socio-cultural, economic and political developments, it is difficult to fix any criterion for inclusion of a language in the Eighth Schedule to the Constitution. The Government is conscious of the sentiments and requirements for inclusion of other languages in the Eighth Schedule. However, no time frame can be fixed for the process of inclusion of additional languages in the Eighth Schedule.
